- Gain via feedback an appreciation of the strengths of their counselling skills, along with indicators for their future development
- Gain some basic introductory training in a range of key issues that impact on the psychological needs of children and young people, and critically reflect on a choice of interventions for young people with differing presenting concerns and mental health needs;
- Reflect critically on adult responses to key issues, particularly being able to identify their own personal response to these issues and to the different presenting behaviours of pupils, and critically reflect upon the professional and ethical considerations to be addressed when education staff work therapeutically with pupils

Expected Learning Outcomes

At the end of this module, students should be able to:

Knowledge and understanding:

1. Critically evaluate key issues that affect the well-being, inclusion and achievement of children and young people
2. Examine assessment, record keeping and evaluation tools appropriate to a range of interventions, population groups and presenting issues.
3. Reflect critically on the use of counselling skills in education and of their own strengths and difficulties in using counselling skills with pupils affected by a variety of key issues
4. Critically reflect on one's own developing competency in counselling skills; learning from demonstration, practice and feedback.

Assessment:

1. Practical demonstration (20 minutes) and evaluation of counselling skills with written reflective report which demonstrates personal learning and skills development, particularly in the area of self-awareness.
2. Essay describing one key issue for children and young people to include an evaluation of appropriate therapeutic interventions, and monitoring systems, with the illustration of one child in context.
